Roanoke is thrilled to announce that the community has successfully passed the bond measure for the new convention center project. This is a significant milestone for the city, and we want to express our gratitude to everyone who participated in the voting process.

The approval of this bond represents a commitment to economic growth, job creation, and maintaining a vibrant atmosphere on Historic Oak Street. The new convention center project will not only serve as a hub for events and gatherings but will also invigorate and foster a dynamic downtown environment.

"Thank you for your enthusiasm and commitment to improving our city," says City Manager Cody Petree. "We are excited to watch this project and vision come to life. Together, we are investing in a bright future for Roanoke."

Mayor Gierisch shares, "I am ecstatic with the approval of the bond measure. This project is not just about building a new venue; it's about fostering community spirit and creating opportunities for all of us. Thank you to every resident who took the time to vote and participate in this exciting journey. I can't wait to see all the great events and activities this center will bring to the community."

This achievement is a testament to our collective vision for the future. We are excited to embark on this journey!
